History of our School

1582

The original school opened in 1582 in the grounds of St Mary's Church. It was extended in 1618 and rebuilt in 1773, before being demolished in 1847, when the church itself was demolished and replaced with the current church.

1845

In 1845 the school was renamed Andover Grammar School and Martha Gale, a resident of Church Close, donated a house to provide a new site for the school, as well as money for development. The house is now Andover Museum, which was opened by former student, Lord Denning in 1981

1925

In 1925 the school moved to a new purpose-built site on Weyhill Road, with the entrance in Croye Close. An open-air swimming pool was built in the 1930s, and in the 1950s the school was extended with state-of-the-art science labs and a new dining hall, with integral kitchens and an impressive theatrical stage.

1974

In 1974, the school was renamed John Hanson School in honour of its founder. According to a promotional brochure for the town published in the early 1970s, the John Hanson name had originally been intended for the new college, which was ultimately designated Cricklade College and is now Andover Sixth Form College. More new buildings were added, providing art studios, a large sports hall and well equipped home economics classrooms. Pre-fabricated huts were installed, as the school expanded.

2001

In 2001, now renamed John Hanson Community School, the school moved to its current site on Floral Way. The Croye Close buildings were demolished and the site is now a small housing estate, with roads named after Lord Denning and Richard Kemys.

Staff Testimonials

We encourage you to take the time to read testimonials from some of our team members who have shared their experiences, providing valuable insights into what it's like to work at John Hanson school.

I am often asked when interviewing prospective new colleagues, what it is like to work at John Hanson- the answer is simple: it is a special community to be part of. I joined as a third-year teacher, relocating from South Wales and I still value my work here fifteen years later.

- CF, Assistant Headteacher/SENCO/
Teacher of English

For me, every day is a different day at JH. I have been given different opportunities to enhance my skills from peers and line management.

Although my role is sometimes challenging, this gives me experience, and positive results make it all worthwhile.

-TA, School Inclusion Officer

It has been a pleasure to work at John Hanson Community school for over 10 years. During my time here, I have been able to seek self-development by completing a Masters and follow areas of education that I feel passionate about. I complete a 45-minute commute to work, and it is worth it.

- DJ, HOY/ Teacher of English

Staff Testimonials

John Hanson is a truly inspirational place to teach, and I am proud to be one of its longest serving members. It places learning, and the desire to constantly develop your practice, regardless of experience, at the core of its principles. It has developed a safe environment to try out new ideas, test pedagogical principles and share best practice. In my twenty-six years here, I have seen it transform into a highly reflective, challenging and supportive place to work.

- PB, HOF Art/Photography

I'm so glad I 'found' John Hanson! Had I known that there was a school that would welcome those on a career transition so openly, I would've made the step a long time ago! John Hanson sees it's staff as 'people', not just employees, recognising that the interests, assets and experiences of its staff are the best tools to inspire the next generation. In my first few days I was struck by how welcoming all the staff were, no matter what level or department, and I still witness the feeling of support that reciprocates throughout the school.

- CH, Teaching Assistant

John Hanson has supported and encouraged my teaching journey from the minute I joined as an unqualified teacher. Thanks to their confidence in my abilities, I was able to develop the subject from the ground up and reintroduce dance into the school.

- TR, Performing Arts Instructor, ECT2
